COMMENTS FROM THE TOWN MANAGER'S OFFICE

Little damage to highways resulted from the heavy rain on Monday. We are fortunate that the full effect of the hurricane did not reach this area.

The second of a series of three letters have been written to those persons on whose property the town holds a tax lien for the 1958 taxes. The letter is a reminder that the lien will expire on Jan. 3, 1961, if not paid. There are currently eight properties secured by a tax lien. The third letter will be mailed about Dec. 1st to those that are still unpaid. This method was tried last year on the 1957 tax liens, which resulted in payment of all liens for that year by the expiration date.

The 1960 municipal valuation return shows an increase in the valuation of the town by $117,826.00 over 1959. The number of poll taxes increased from 537 to 551. There are also 106 persons exempt from the poll tax as they are over 70, or are a qualified veteran. Assessed valuation on property owned by veterans exempt from property taxation amounts to $84,559.00.

Since the annual town meeting the town has been without the services of a dog constable. At the last meeting of the Board of Selectmen, Georges Damone was appointed Constable, with the duties of Dog Constable.

Sincerely,
Harold L. Bean

HOBBY AND COLLECTORS' SHOW PROMISES INTERESTING VARIETY

When you enter the doors of the West Parish Congregational Church to visit the Hobby and Collectors Show Sept. 23, you may find yourself as surprised as the Circle 1 committee planning the show—for the exhibits cover an amazing range of hobbies.

There are now some 75 exhibits promised, with at least 10 exhibitors planning on displaying more than one of their hobbies and collections—for example Mrs. Marah Webster will show a large antique tray, a china teapot, an old wash basin, and a chair—all of which she has handpainted or stencilled, and the Gayle Fosters will return to Bethel to exhibit their unique plastic work, photographs, coin collection, stamps and wood-working. Gene Van is going to bring forth his gun collection.

Sunset Rebekah Lodge will hold their regular meeting Sept. 19th. This will be election of officers. A pot luck supper will be served at 6:30 p. m. All members urged to attend.

Martha Brown, Bethel, and Kaye Ring, Bryant Pond, were among those receiving their second year stripe at the Banding Exercises held at Herbert Hall, CMG Hospital, Friday, Sept. 9.

Ronald Willard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jay Willard, is visiting his brother, David, who is a student at Columbia Medical Center in New York and will then continue to Williamsburg, Va., to William and Mary College, where he is a senior.

Road Reconstruction Changes the Scenery

A highway project of interest is the new bridge over Bear River at Newry Corner, being built by E. C. Snodgrass, Inc., of Portland. Part of the road job in Bethel and Newry started last fall by H. E. Sargent, Inc., of Stillwater and nearing completion, the bridge work involves raising part of the former concrete structure. Piles were driven and the old section, less some six feet in width, has been picked up. This will be lowered to be in line with a downstream section, now being poured, and the entire floor banked in the shape of the new road. Allen Smith is state engineer in charge.

Rapid progress is shown on the Lynchville road project started two weeks ago by the Sargent company. The right of way is cleared to East Stoneham village, and much earth has been moved. It is all on new location from Lynchville to East Stoneham, a new bridge being just below the present one. Bridge building is by William Moore of Livermore, and George Hamlin is in charge for the State.

lection along with samples of his woodcarving, and Betty Anderson, will show her stencilling on wood and tin, and also a fiddle backed chair she has refinished. You may win one of her stencilled tin boxes as a door prize, and Mrs. Ted Emery is donating two plastic flower pendants made by the Fosters as door prizes, too.

If antique glass, wood working or dolls are your interest, you will enjoy the exhibits by Grace and Charles Merrill who have a Hobby Shop. Exhibiting dolls will be two young exhibitors, Patty Saunders, a grade school student, and Judy Myers of Gould, as well as their Elm Street neighbor, Mrs. Ruth Young, who will not only exhibit dolls, but driftwood arrangements. Another school girl, Maryvonne Rolfe, is also showing a doll collection, and this show will also afford an opportunity to view the well known period dolls of Mrs. Annie Cotton.

No less than eight hobbyists on Elm Street plan to exhibit, including Lucia Tikander, antique stencilled chairs, and Janet Richardson with a fascinating collection of Mexican baskets, copper dishes, shawls, Florence and Ted Emery plan on showing beautiful rugs and also the furniture they refinish so skillfully.

When you enter Garland Chapel you will view a Victorian parlor furnished by Bea Brown from her antique shop, and lucky the person who draws the door prize of four beautiful Johnson (English) dessert plates in a lacy blue pattern, she has donated. You will see hooked, braided, and oriental rugs exhibited by Florence.

WESTERN EUROPE
An Area for Investment Consideration

Today the investor should devote at least a part of his time to a study of an apportioning of his funds in European securities. We believe there are several excellent opportunities for capital gains in this field, especially in view of the fact that there are many European companies which are competing for markets of American companies not only abroad but in the United States.

Today the European economy is thriving, especially in steel, chemicals and capital goods, although the consumers goods business is being held back by high interest rates. In the United States almost the opposite is taking place. We feel that the outlook for European companies should continue to be satisfactory for sometime in view of the fact that consumer needs have not even closely reached a saturation point, unemployment is relatively low and there is still a great need for more productive capacity. Forecasts for 1960 indicate a greater percentage growth in the Gross National Product for Italy, West Germany, Holland and France than for the United States. Shortage of raw materials and in some cases plant capacity are limiting the economic growth of the United Kingdom though not seriously.

Before investing in European securities various factors must be considered. There are many complications involved in buying on European Exchanges and consequently such purchases might only be justified in the case of large commitments. For smaller investments and larger ones as well, the prudent course is to purchase European stocks listed in this country or traded over-the-counter through A.D.R. (American Depository Receipts) or otherwise. Some companies on the New York Stock Exchange and American Stock Exchange that we feel are attractive are:

New York Stock Exchange—Electric & Musical Industries, Montecatini and Royal Dutch.

American Stock Exchange—Ford, ICI, Imperial Chemical and Hugo Boss.

Of the unlisted securities readily available we feel that Philips Lamp is probably the most attractive, although it has more than doubled in market value in the past year and a half. Other interesting stocks are: Badische Anilin and Siemens & Halske (Germany); Elliot Automation (United Kingdom); and Michelin and Pechiney (France).

SAFE DRIVERS IN LINE FOR INSURANCE BREAK

Safe drivers are in line for lower automobile insurance rates in the future, according to Changing Times, the Kiplinger Magazine.

An article in the current issue of the magazine points out that competition for business is growing feverish, and the insurance companies are coming out with one new plan after another for lowering premiums.

There's something in the bag for everyone, according to the article, but the biggest prizes of all are being reserved for the safest drivers. The darker side of these new plans, the editors of the magazine note, is that to make room for rate cuts, poorer drivers face higher costs for protection against auto accidents and damages. Even the motorist with just a few black marks on his record may have to pay more.

For years, some companies have sold insurance at cut rates to people who passed stiff eligibility tests. Now the idea is spreading. The criteria used will vary from one firm to another, but these are most common:

—Driving record. Has the driver been involved in accidents or scrapes with the law?

—Occupation. Is the driver's job "hazardous"? Is he, for example, a migrant worker, liquor salesman, athlete, serviceman, traveling salesman?

—Driver. Is he under 25 or over 65? Has he been driving less than two years? Is he an alcoholic or physically handicapped?

—Car. Is it old or beaten up? Is it driven more than a specified number of miles per year?

One or two yeses usually are sufficient to rule an applicant out as a preferred risk, according to the article. Some companies, however, are more lenient than others. Discounts usually range from 10% to 25% below standard rates.

It's worth checking, according to the editors, but they warn that companies selling to preferred risks tend to drop clients who have a few claims more quickly than other firms.

UP AMONG THE CLOUDS

Several weeks ago, we started at 10 a. m. to climb Mount Washington. It took us until 6 p. m. to complete the climb. We went via the auto road, which seems easier than a trail. At first, the walking was not too hard, but as mile mounted upon mile, we began to be very footsore and quite weary, and could not help but wish the top might be in sight.

Mount Washington, some 6,288 feet, is the highest peak north of the Carolinas and east of the Mississippi. It was first seen from the ocean as early as 1606, and was first ascended in 1642 by a man called Darby Field. This mountain has high ravines cut into its sides. And above the ravines are level stretches called "lawns," which vary in elevation from 5,000 to 5,500 feet. Recent count made of rings in sections of scrub trees indicates them to be the oldest living objects in the world except the big trees in California.

All the way up cars were going up or coming down. The weather was ideal. The views of the mountains are superb. Mounts Madison, Jefferson, and Adams are things of beauty, and a joy, forever, to behold! The sun shines on the many peaks, in the Presidential Range, and you seem in some places to be actually going along with the clouds. The mind and eye cannot take in the vastness of the scene.

After we were within one mile of the Summit House, fog came in, and the last mile of the walk was a murky one. The Summit House affords food and shelter, which is indeed welcome. Going down the trail, seems easier, until one becomes weary about one-half way down. Then, it becomes an increasing effort to make time on each mile. Trees, rocks, mountains, etc., are very prevalent all along the way. The Glen House finally comes into view, and what a welcome sight it seems.

We have made the effort, enjoyed the trip, walked some 16 miles, and feel that we have come nearer to Nature than ever before, and that we have felt but briefly, the Hand of the Creator.
